I am not averse to completely ignoring Edwards' October 15, 2008 letter, if that is what you would prefer.

Hi [REDACTED] I am out of the office today so I can't edit the letter from my Blackberry. I hate the idea of writing yet another letter that will be attached to a pleading or quoted in the paper.

I would feel more comfortable with something that says:

Thank you for your letter. The Office is involved in the criminal investigation of Mr. Epstein and is neither a party to nor involved in any civil suits against him. If you have any documentary evidence that you believe establishes a breach of the Non-Prosecution Agreement, you can forward that evidence to AUSA [REDACTED] The Office will then conduct its own review in accordance with the terms of the Non-Prosecution Agreement.

And leave it at that. What do you all think?

Attached please find my draft response to Edwards' Oct 15, 2008 letter. Please ensure that it is factually correct, particularly with regard to what Epstein agreed to during the negotiations. Thanks.
